Truck Accidents

Our attorneys have significant experience defending trucking companies in actions arising from serious trucking accidents including cases involving employees and independent contractors. We recognize that successfully defending our client's interest in a trucking case involving catastrophic injuries or death requires meticulous preparation, including interviewing witnesses, identifying effective experts, developing a comprehensive understanding of the mechanics of the accident, and analyzing those regulations and/or statutes that may impact liability. Our involvement in trucking accident cases frequently encompasses all phases of the legal process, from the formulation and execution of strategic plans for pre-litigation investigation and evidence preservation to carrying out a strategic and persuasive defense through discovery, trial, and appeal.
